TORPEDO BOATS DEMAND.

LONDON, May 17.—A dispatch from Wellington, New Zealand, states that the Regent General, the Marquis of Normandy, who is the Governor appointed by the Crown, has decided upon ordering from England a number of torpedo boats for the protection of the colony. This is understood to be simply a precautionary measure, as no danger from an attack by sea is yet threatened the colony; but within the past ten or twelve years New Zealand has prospered and become much more desirable than formerly as a possession for any power, and it was concluded by the Governor, with the consent of the General Assembly of the Colony, that further harbor defense was needed in case of the breaking out of a war between England or any other maritime power.

FOREST FIRES.

The Fire Fiend Still Sweeping Over New Jersey.

National Associated Press to the Star.

New York, May 17.—The fire fiend has not relaxed his hold in Southern New Jersey. There was great destruction yesterday by the flames. The wind began blowing from the northeast at sunrise, and blew a gale all day, fanning to life the dying embers and rekindling the old blazes that were flickering on the edges of the cedar swamp. By 10 a. m. a line of fire was traveling southward over the Colwell tract, that had escaped before, and region from Egg Harbor to Masecon, twelve miles southeast, to Tuckahoe, twenty-five miles, May's Landing seven miles southeast, and to Millville, twenty-two miles, was in flames.

The country to the west of Egg Harbor City on the line of the Camden & Atlantic Railroad as far as Elw od, seven miles, had been eaten bare by the flames the day before, but the fire beginning to the south of the Great Egg Harbor Vine Yards, which had been saved the night before, worked around to the westward in the face of the gale and when the solid woods near Hammon were placed upon its lee it went dashing down to the Little Egg Harbor River Valley, sweeping the country clean as far as it passed by. So rapid was its onward movement that the people fled from its advance and escaped with their lives.

The ground burned over yesterday in the Colwell tract alone was more than eighteen thousand acres, and the surface over which the fire traveled was at least six times as much. In all more than half as much territory was burned over in one day than had ever swept by the flames during the entire two weeks in which the fire raged in Southern New Jersey. A church and school was destroyed in Cumberland County, just after the departure of the congregation. Hundreds of people fought the flames at various points. There is great destruction of woodlands and quite a number of frame buildings were burned down.

Human life was imperiled, but nobody perished yesterday, as far as reported. At last accounts the fire was dying in most places. The people living on the line of railroads complain bitterly of the damage done by engines, especially those in which hard coal is used. The fires are generally started by locomotives. A few days ago one engine started seven fires within a distance of ten miles.

The Migratory Apilary Again on Its Travels.

Special to the Star.

St. Louis, May 17.—A gentleman by the name of William O. Atwood, who claims Zanesville, Indiana, as his home, is engaged just now in a mammoth and most ingenious effort to produce honey in great quantities and of a very superior quality, in St. Louis and has been interviewed by a Post-Dispatch reporter. He has procured two barges of the ordinary kind.

On these barges he has placed 1,400 model bee hives, filled with busy workers, and about 200 empty hives. On April 20th he left Vicksburg, and after a run of ten or twelve miles, tied up at a point where the willows were thick and in bloom. The bees worked among the willows here for two days, and then Mr. Atwood steamed up the river a matter of 25 miles, and again released the bees. It is his intention to follow up the bloom of the willows as far north as St. Paul. He expects his barges to reach St. Louis sometime in June.

The Whittaker Investigation.

National Associated Press to the Star.

WEST POINT, May 17.—Yesterday was unusually quiet here. The cadets in no way expressed themselves on the facts brought out Saturday, though it was whispered about that they would go so far as to force Whittaker off the post. When Court adjourned Saturday evening Gen. Schofield sent for Whittaker and asked him if he had anything to say. He replied that he had nothing to add to his testimony in Court. After considerable talk with him General Schofield asked him if he wanted to confess.

Whittaker replied that he had nothing to confess, and insisted upon his innocence strongly. In a conversation Whittaker, who seemed to have no objection to talking freely on the matter, said it was foolish to insinuate that he had written the note of warning. He said his table always had plenty of his writing on it and plenty of paper, and any one might easily get plenty of both. He claimed it was part of the conspiracy to obtain some of his writing paper. He expressed himself confident of the future, and declared that notwithstanding the great mental excitement he has been under for the past weeks he will pass in June.

Some infamous scoundrel has tried to ruin the fair reputation of Miss Amanda Knott by circulating the report that she was drowned. An article out from a sheet of a daily paper was stuck in a window of a West End barber shop, and the lady in question took the law in her own hands and gave Mr. Brown orders to take it down, and you bet he did it quick.

We understand a Councilman and a policeman was mixed up in the affair, and we would advise everybody to leave Miss Knott alone or there will be blood on the moon.

Early yesterday morning the dead and dreadfully mangled body of an elderly man was found on the track of the Southern Railroad a few hundred yards south of Silver Lake, near the Lexington Turnpike Road, and about fifteen miles from this city. The coroner held an inquest and it being evident from the testimony of witnesses and from papers found in the clothing, that deceased was one John W. Bell, a sort of peripatetic corn doct, living largely in either Grant or Scott County, Ky., the verdict of the coroner's jury was in accordance with these facts and surmises. There was nothing shown to indicate that the death was other than accidental.

The Knights of St. George, in uniform and with a band of music, were represented, and a concourse of people from all parts of the county and numbering several hundred was present, filling the little town and adding largely to the interest of the occasion. A parchment containing the customary list of legends was deposited in the stone; also copies of the Cincinnati and Covington papers.

The will of Henry C. Recker was also probated. After the payment of his debts he bequeathed to his wife, Catherine Recker, all of his real and personal estate. The case of William Conroy, who is contesting for a ferry right at California, was continued until the next term of the Court at Alexandria.

PENTECOST SUNDAY.—The ancient Festival, commemorative of the descent of the Holy Ghost, in the form of tongues of flame upon the heads of the Apostles, while they were gathered in council upon heavenly things in the upper room of a house in Jerusalem, was appropriately celebrated yesterday in the Catholic Churches of this city.

At the St. Stephen's Church at 9:30 o'clock, solemn high mass was celebrated, and Right Rev. Bishop Toebe gave holy communion to a large number of children, in the presence of an overflowing congregation. The good Bishop also gave an instructive discourse on the interesting occasion.

In the evening at 7 1/2 o'clock he administered the Sacrament of Confirmation. In the Church of the Immaculate Conception at half past 7 in the morning, the little boys and girls of the parish received their first communion, the latter in dresses of the purest white, and placed on their heads were wreaths of lilies, emblems of purity, the choir meanwhile rendering the most joyous anthems. Rev. Father McNery preached a most touching and appropriate address to the little ones at the conclusion of the ceremonies, reminding them of the sacredness of the trust just imposed upon them on this the happiest day of their life.

At 8 o'clock in the afternoon solemn vespers were sung by the Bishop, and the Sacrament of Confirmation was administered by him to a multitude of the children of that large congregation. Bishop Toebe also preached briefly both before and after the ceremonial, giving much good advice to both parents and children. These beautiful services, in which youthful innocence was so prominent a feature, were witnessed not only by many of the happy parents and delighted friends of the children, but also by numerous Protestant acquaintances, to whom the brilliant and impressive ceremonies of the Church are always attractive and interesting.

VEGETINE.

Vegetine

Will Cure Rheumatism.

URBANA, O., Feb. 14, 1877.

MA. H. R. STEVENS.—Dear Sir: I feel greatly indebted to your excellent medicine, Vegetine, for what it has done for me. I have been subjected to Rheumatism all my life. Was attacked with it three years ago, and suffering terrible pains in my chest, back and limbs for six or eight months, at which time I commenced using Vegetine on the advice of a friend, who had been entirely cured by it. I had scarcely used a half bottle until the pain had left me, and my general health began to improve rapidly under influence of this great blood purifier. I had also suffered dreadfully from a Rheumatism for seven or eight years. After taking the first bottle of Vegetine I noticed a great change for the better. The constant pain and heaviness that had over my eyes for years disappeared, and the discharge of mucus from the head ceased. My appetite got better, and strength seemed to come with every dose of medicine. Too much can not be said in its favor. I always take pleasure in recommending it to my friends who may be suffering from any disease of the blood, for I feel satisfied if they try it they are sure of a cure.

I am, very respectfully, yours,

W. H. RHODES, Manager Western Union Telegraph Office, Urbana, O.

Will Cure Rheumatism.

COLUMBUS, O., Feb. 14, 1877.

MR. H. R. STEVENS.—Dear Sir: I wish to inform you what Vegetine has done for my family. Eighteen months ago my daughter had a severe attack of Rheumatism, and a friend who had used the Vegetine advised her to try it, and she did so with perfect success, for after using a few bottles of it she was entirely cured. I am myself at the present time using the Vegetine for Rheumatism with good success. My other daughter has also used it, and it has effected a permanent cure. I have also recommended it to many others with good success, and I honestly believe that the Vegetine is the best medicine for the above named diseases that there is, and I always wish to keep it in my house as a family medicine.
